

APR 12 1965

CPYRGHT

The President named retired Adm. William F. Raborn to be director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Raborn, who was in charge of developing the Polaris missile, will succeed John A. McCone, who is said to have been wanting to retire for some time. Raborn is vice president of Aerojet-General Corp.